

She Likes What She's Doing

The small engine repair course offered by Western Piedmont Community College at Hildebran High School has two young women in the class. Danny Adkins, instructor, said the girls didn't even know how to use a wrench when the 11-week course started. Now they are working on two-cycle engines such as this chain saw and doing a fine job. Here Mrs. Ann Long of Icard and Howard Swafford of Valdese work on a saw. "I like what I'm doing," she said contentedly. Adkins is quick to tell visitors that the course normally only deals with four cycle engines, but this particular class has advanced to the two cycle type and, in addition to chain saws, is working on boat motors. Not shown is the other girl in the class, Miss Jencee Hopkins of Hildebran. (Staff photo by Dorothy Cable)