

WPCC to host Scottish musician

Flora MacDonald Gammon

Scottish folk musician Flora MacDonald Gammon will present a free performance on today at 7:15 p.m. at Western Piedmont Community College's Moore Auditorium.

Gammon learned her music from her family, descendants of Highland Scots who settled in eastern North Carolina in the late 1700s. Her performances trace the Celtic strains in American culture through stories, ballads and nonsense songs.

"By investigating their heritage,

(the audience) can develop a pride in themselves, understand themselves better and be willing to pass on to future generations the things they have learned about themselves," Gammon says.

She currently calls Waynesville home.

Audiences of all ages are sure to enjoy this unique performance.

For more information, contact Grady Pitts in WPCC's development office, 438-6011.