PLANNING BURKE COLLEGE—Chief discussion leaders assemble today for a two-day planning conference to pool ideas and suggestions for Western Piedmont Community College, soon to be constructed in Burke County. Meeting in the council chambers at the new city hall, nationally recognized consultants will join trustees, educators and others from this section of the state interested in planning the organization, curriculum, buildings and operation of a comprehensive community college. Left to right: Dr. Raymond Schultz, professor of higher education of Florida State University at Tallahassee; Dr.

Gordon Pyle of the Department of Community Colleges of the State Board of Education; Dr. Kenneth R. Williams, president of Florida Atlantic University at Boca Raton; and Dr. Herbert F. Stallworth, president of Western Piedmont. Arriving later today will be another consultant, Dr. Samuel Baskin, director of program development and research in education at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. They are looking over a detailed manual prepared by President Stallworth as a guide for the planning conference which will continue until 5:30 p.m. Saturday. (Staff Photo by F. H. Dixon).
